

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURAL SCIENCES

Advanced Topics in Biotechnology

Upon the successful completion of the course, students will be qualified in the subjects of modern biotechnology with an emphasis on plant and food production. Students will receive training in new technologies and their applications in agriculture and will be able to understand the possibilities that biotechnology offers to address problems of crop and food production. In addition, they will understand the necessity of risk assessment and legislative regulation of genetically modified organisms and food.